Loved this game. Loads of fun. Games don't take long. I played with a large group of friends queueing solo together and we had nothing but laughs. You earn rewards rather quickly. You don't feel like you have to grind out cool cosmetics. Especially good game to get the Discord server together for a night of solo rumble.. its fun for a (short) while.. its a verry cool train. (no mater what great weston railway says). its cool. but i think it should be cheaper! all you need is a southenVfcc reskin!. This game is great fun! It is surprisingly well polished too.. Ah Shu,

From the moment I saw you at EGX and having a go at the demo, I just had to buy you.

This game is amazing, due to the tight platforming and the lucious drawn visuals.
It's also a mix between Rayman Origins/ Legends and Donkey Kong Country.

I fully reccomend this game.

This is a polished platformer with plenty of mechanics to play with and a good sense of how to hide secrets in its levels. It's not the longest game in terms of time spent to complete it, but the levels present a good variety of challenges, and make good use of the various mechanics available through the characters you meet up with. The only thing I wish I'd seen would be variations of the character teamups you could have had, but what's here is great already.

If you don't like platformers in the first place, I doubt this would change your mind, but for everyone else, it's worth a try!. Loved this. The little alien is so easy to control. Good story line too. Still need to finish the game as it does get tougher the more you play. 9/10. I'm not sure. It's fun - but also it's not?? The puzzles are just so farfetched compared to the demo. They don't ease you into it. I complete a lot of escape rooms and escape games, and I've never experienced a game where I just sit back and go, "I have NO idea what to do next."

If that happens once?? That's okay, it comes with the puzzle territory. It happens in every game and with every puzzle?? The game design isn't superb.. this is a good video strategy games. Thirteen of my steam friends: "I'm gonna buy this game" Every one of those same people: "I'm never gonna play it!"

You're looking at three hours worth of exploring the mansion of immortal (?) Not-Elvis-Presley, including a ton of secret passages. A surreal, trippy aesthetic permeates this game as you explore the maze-like structure, piece together the game's history via hidden routes, and ultimately break into the titular room. It's like Gone Home but not fOcking garbage. Even the music is markedly better here. Everyone that gave GH praise while ignoring this game needs to get bent in half.

Important: keep your eyes open for the paintings. About a quarter of them have conspicuous buttons on them that you might accidentally mistake for just being part of the game's art style.

Running a video game for an hour and a half in order to get steam cards is not playing the game, get real.. I get about 40 FPS max on a good day, but average is about 35 FPS. I have a 6600K and an R9 380X. This game runs awful.
